What does the red light on my Toro 60v battery charger mean?

It's an essential tool for any homeowner with a Toro 60V battery-powered lawn mower. But what does that little red light on the charger mean? The red light on your Toro 60V Battery Charger indicates that the charger is connected to a live power source and is ready to charge your battery.

Why is my Toro battery charger blinking red?

If you have a Toro battery charger and it's blinking red, there are a few things that could be going on. First, check to make sure the charger is properly plugged into an outlet. If it is, then the next thing to check is the connections between the charger and the battery. Make sure they are secure and free of any dirt or debris.

Can I replace a Toro battery pack?

Replace the battery pack with a genuine Toro battery pack only; using another type of battery pack may cause a fire or explosion. Keep battery packs out of the reach of children and in the original packaging until you are ready to use them. These devices comply with Part 15 of the FCC rules.

Are Toro LiPo batteries reliable?

It's clear the reliability of their battery system is systemically flawed. TLDR: TORO's 'Flex-Force' LiPo batteries stop charging after 2-3 years, from what seems like some fault with the controller PCB. The lack of replacement parts and the PCB being potted means these batteries can't be easily repaired by the average consumer.
